

Local Men in Politics Speak at Civic League

The Greater Bustleton Civic League had a very informative meeting last Tuesday when many Northeast political leaders attended and gave brief talks.

All of the speakers gave a brief biography of themselves and then launched into statements of policy. Two highlights of the meeting were when the reading of the Bible in schools was brought up. Mr. Schneider stated his interest in the amendment which would in effect restore Bible reading to schools. Mr. Grundke asked that a vote be taken so the candidates would know our feelings. It was generally felt that the sentiments of the audience were in agreement with him. All of those interested were urged to write to Mr. Schneider and Mr. Toll. The other issue concerned the lack of a definite program on Unemployment Compensation on the part of the Democratic Party. Mr. Eilberg was quite vituperative in defense of the party and launched out against Mr. Raider even more than Mr. Frank Barbera.

Mrs. Sider said she felt this was the type of program Civic Leagues should have and that this was most successful.

Letters were sent by Hugh Scott and Joseph S. Clark stating that they will support Bills Nos. S-1200 and S-2226 introduced by Senators Gruening and Javitz to the effect whereby the FHA home buyers are assured of getting a structurally sound home.
